

AUG 17 1961

Ex-State Department, CIA Official Speaks Saturday

Willmoore Kendall, former State Department and Central Intelligence Agency official, will speak Saturday in Hollywood High School auditorium at the Symposium on Freedom series, announced Robert M. Samples, director of the lecture series. Before joining the faculty at Yale in 1947, Dr. Kendall served with the State Department and with the Central Intelligence Agency.

Throughout his period of government service, he was one of a small group of men that fought—and lost—the battle for responsible and vigorous anti-Communist policies.

Dr. Kendall, who is a Rhodes scholar studied at Oxford, feels that "if the officials in government, at the highest level, had not adopted the "soft" approach in dealing with the worldwide Communist conspiracy, we would not be faced today with the loss to the free world of such nations as China, Poland, Hungary and Cuba.

"Such incidents as the riots in Japan, South America and San Francisco by Communist-controlled students, could never have taken place if this compromising attitude by the U.S. Government had not been the prevailing policy."

With this background in government and the universities, Dr. Kendall is considered to be one of the foremost authorities on world politics in the U.S. today. As a political analyst, his articles appear in such noted publications as Southern Review, The Journal of Politics and World Politics.

Tickets Are Available

He has authored such books as "Democracy and the American Party System," "A Communist Party in Action" and a translation of Rousseau's "Social Contract." Besides teaching at Yale, Dr. Kendall is an editor of National Review.

Willmoore Kendall's address is the 12th in a series of 36 lectures by men of international reputation on the crises that America faces today.

He will be followed by Congressman John Rousselot on Sept. 2, and E. Merrill Root on Sept. 16.

Tickets for these lectures are available by mail at 642 N. Plymouth Blvd., Los Angeles 4; telephone HOLLYWOOD 4444 or CRestview 4-0201, or by office at the high school on the evening of the address.

CPYRGHT